

Create a complex number structure. Create functions for arithmetic operations on complex numbers (addition, subtraction).

For each of the operations (input, addition, subtraction, printing) create separate function.

Your program should enable the input of two complex numbers and the application of all the above functions, as well as printing the values that the functions calculate.